AMERICANS WORKING ON FLYING MACHINES.

Connecticut and Texas Inventors Hope Soon to Solve Problem of Aerial Navigation.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 18.-With the purpose in view of perfecting a flying machine that will solve the problem of aerial navigation to the point of commercial success, Gustave Whitehead of this city and W. D. Custead of Waco, Tex., have formed a partnership. Both men are inventors. Whitehead has invented a flying machine and

Last Tuesday night Whitehead with two assistants took his machine to a long field back of Fairfield and the inventor for the first time flew his machine for half a mile. It worked perfectly, and the operator found no difficulty in handling it. Whitehead's machine is equipped with two engines, one to propel it from the ground on wheels and the other to make the wings or propellers go.

In order to fly, the machine is speeded to a sufficient momentum on the ground by the lower engine and then the engine running the propellers is started, which raises the machine in the air at an angle of about 6 degrees. Custead's airship rises vertically from the ground, and requires no running start as Whitehead's does before the ascent is made But the hopes of the inventors for suc-cess are pinned to a new pressure generator which Whitehead has invented. He has

which Whitehead has invented. He has demonstrated that the generator will work, for he used it to furnish power for both his engines at the trial of his machine last Tuesday. Calcium carbide is used as fuel. By a series of rapid explosions the acctylene gas is forced into chambers where it comes in contact with a chemical preparation. This produces a powerful and even pisten pressure. The chemical preparation is the secret of the new generator, and Whitehea'l will not reveal the ingredients. He has applied for patents. The new generator will, it is claimed by Whitehead and Custead, lessen the weight of motor power 75 per cent.

Custead is backed by a number of Texas and Southern capitalists for the manufacture of the new airship. The good points of both inventors flying machines will be included in the new machine, and this combination with the new acetylene chemical pressure generator, it is believed, will produce the desired results in the way of a flytus machine.

WELL GUSHED UNEXPECTEDLY. Workmen Overcome While Trying

to Subdue It-New Field. Beaumont, Tex., Aug. 18 .- For more than an hour the El Beaumont well, which came in unexpectedly this afternoon, furnished the visitors to the field a spectacle the like of which has not been witnessed for some of which has not been witnessed for some time.

While the drillers were in the act of removing the drilling pipe to see what condition the gas blow had left the hole in the well came in as an oil spouter, much to the consternation of the drillers.

When the mighty column of oil had finally been subdued, a hearty cheer went up from the thousand or more people who had gathered around the well, but the cheer was cut short, for the moment their work was done three of the heroic drillers fell to the earth from the nervous strain and the effects of gas. They were soon revived, however, and were little the worse for their experience.

however, and were little the worse for their experience.

The well spouted for more than an hour and deluged a large section of the Hogg-swayne purchase with oil. Some of the oil fell on a hot boiler and a cloud of smoke arose. The oil did not imite, however, and the hill again escaped a fire that would have been destructive beyond speculation.

The new gusher, which is the thirtieth in the field, showed very conclusively that it was a spouter of the first class, for the oil went about fifty feet above the derrick even with the drilling pipe still in the well. It does not increase the area of the proved territory however being practically surrounded by gushers.

The Hogg-Swayne syndicate, which has been prominent in connection with the development of Spindletop, has just made another big venture in the oil business. It was announced to-night that the syndicate has bought 230 acres of land lying just south of the town of Dayton, the northern boundary of the land being only a half mile from the town.

The purchase was made last Monday, but no announcement of the sale was made until to-night.

Lectures Women on Wearing Corsets, Jewels, Laces and on Permitting Their Sons to Vote Away Their Mothers' Rights.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 18.-Carrie Nation was snubbed by the hotel men here today when she made endeavors to secure accommodations for the day. She came in town this morning and two hours were fruitlessly spent in trying to get her rooms.

The St. Charles Hotel, which has a buffet. leclined to have Carrie turned loose in the establishment and negatived her application the instant it was made. "Women were made of clean fiesh, and that story about her coming from the rib of a man is a mistake. If I had my way I would hold my meetings in saloons and houses of fallen women.

"Every official in Kansas is perjured to break the law. They need a little salt; they need a little ruth. There is more money spent in that State by the liquor traffic to control the officials than any other State in the Union, all being corrupt from the Governor down. Now the Lord says to destroy the works of the devil. That's what I did out there with my little hatchet. I want to be in a position to say on the judgment day: I did all I could."

Bank Statement Proved a Disagreeable Surprise to the Stockholders-Money Market the Point of Interest.

PEPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Aug. 18.-Wall street speculative market for the greater portion of the week moved steadily against the ourrent of its news developments, prices advancing materially in the face of full confirmation of heavy corn crop impairment and a dis-turbed labor situation which at the week's end showed the reverse of improvement. News, however, was not all bad, aithough the principal features were of an unfavorable character. The railroad reports continued remarkably favorable as the increased earnings and heavy gains in wheat exports more than made up for the diminished hipments of corn.

Until Saturday when the curiously confused bank statement, reflecting an actual plus reserve, set men to thinking the week's money market was about an even thing. The slightly higher tendency for time and call funds was offset by the decline in sterling exchange, putting gold shipments in the near future entirely out of the ques

Public Holds Aloof.

Certainly at the outset of the week, and until the close, the mixed character of the news influenced the variable trading, transforming at the last an apparently strong market into an apparently weak one. The character of the business, however, reflected little change and was confined wholly to little change and was confined wholly to the trading element. At no time during the interval were the important financial in-terests influenced either by the buying or the selling, which, in their judgment, was without significance in indicating the future of securities. The public held aloof as be-fore from speculative ventures, permitting the traders and weak operators to play the game among themselves with varying suc-cess.

Despite the late reaction, stocks left off, Despite the late reaction, stocks left off, as a rule, considerably higher than they began. Whether manipulators for the advance selected their position wisely is a matter which the future will determine. In conditions there is certainly little upon which to bull stocks, but that stocks may go higher in the end is not impossible, and in view of the heavy load carried by the syndicates and bankers, it is practically a foregone conclusion that attempts will be oregone conclusion that attempts will be nade to force an advance later on. Strength Due to Covering.

Stocks were made to sell, and they cannot be sold in any inactive or reactionary marbe sold in any inactive or reactionary mar-ket. Most of the apparent strength of the week was due to the covering of shorts and was attributable to no news bearing upon the general situation, nor was it warranted by any known developments. The explana-tions offered through Wall street to account for the advances was that liquidations since July 1 had fully of the news. The absence of general selling on Monday when the market opened under a flood of bad news was regarded by trad-ers as indicating strength in the speculative ers as indicating strength in the apecuative position. As stocks would not go down, professionals worked to put them up, using the short interest as a lever to force prices to a higher level.

The reduction of the short interest naturally works two ways in lifting the selling value and these has been eliminated a steadying element from the market which renders securities more vulnerable under assault of bad news than before. This fact was clearly indicated by the ease with which prices receded on Friday and Satur-

Wall street put upon the steel strike situ ation on Monday, an opinion not borne out by subsequent developments, the market was sustained chiefly on reported buying ondon's home securities.

With British consols at about 94%, it is ment and speculative market possesses many bargains fully as advantageous as

Saturday's bank statement was a distinct street, which had been counting upon an icrease in cash holdings and a possible gain in the surplus reserve.

The loss of cash of $2.719,000 was entirely unlooked for, while the decrease of $2.531,650 in the surplus reserve reduces that item to $18,421,900, and leaves a very stender margin on the eve of a crop-moving demand. Already the subtreasury is beginning to feel the preliminary calls from the interior, and has made several telegraphic transfers, the last of which, on Saturday, when $50,000 last of which, on Saturday, when $50,000 was sent to New Orleans. It seems apparent, therefore, that interest must again converge upon the money market.

Liquidation in stocks and the heavy borrowing from Europe on sterling have un-doubtedly done much to relieve the tension which must otherwise have fallen on this market, but the future is not absolutely denarket must still continue profes
